Song, Dance Festival to Note Fifteenth United Nations Week

An International Festival of Song and Dance to highlight United Nations Week is to be held at the San Pedro High School Saturday, Oct. 29 at 8 p.m. Dr. Wendell Black, president of Los Angeles Harbor College, will be master of ceremonies for this affair, which is sponsored by the Harbor Area Chapter, American Association for the United Nations.

Miss Josephine Perry, president, and the United Nations Week Committee, headed by Mrs. S. V. V. Hoffman, have arranged a colorful program to celebrate this fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the United Nations. President Eisenhower's Proclamation of United Nations Day will be read by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, and the Statement by Governor Brown will be presented by Councilman John S. Gibson.

IRA KAYE, past president of the International Junior Chamber of Commerce and of the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce, will open the program with welcome and a tribute to the United Nations. The San Pedro High School Band, under the direction of Manley Wood, and the San Pedro Senior High School Choir, directed by Mrs. Byrle Shuck, will present appropriate numbers.

Outstanding features of this free presentation are the guest soloist, Maralin Niska, the Dalmatian Chorale of the Yugoslav-American Club of San Pedro, Prof. Branko Porobic, Director. Solo and group dances characteristic of several countries in Europe, Asia and Latin-America, will make up the program. American Field Service students from Palos Verdes and San Pedro will be introduced.

"THE NEED for the ideals, the organization, and the leadership of the United Nations in achieving world peace and human betterment has never been more apparent," said Miss Perry (President of the Harbor Area Chapter, A.A.U.N.) "We are happy that our cultural richness in the Harbor Area makes it possible to commemorate the 15th anniversary of the United Nations so appropriately."

Members of Mrs. Hoffman's United Nations Week Committee are: Misses Mabel Cory, Catherine Lockett, Louise Mansfield, Mary O'Rourke; Mesdames C. F. Eccles, Elmer Higgs, Thomas McDougall, Helen Park, Byrle Shuck, Andrew Spaan; Rev. Phillip Norvell, and Mr. Van Guelder Waring.

Last year's International Festival of Song and Dance, under the same auspices, was widely praised, and attracted an audience of 900 people.

School Parking Area

The site of the old administration building at Perry Elementary School soon will become a parking lot, the Torrance Board of Education has decided.

Bids will be sought soon on the project. The old building had to be torn down. Ways also will be constructed for children to walk safely to school.

Army Recruiter Promises School Training for New WAC Enlistees

School training in a dozen specialized skills can be guaranteed women who enlist in the Women's Army Corps during the balance of this year.

Quotas for Wacs are available at Army schools teaching basic courses in dental laboratory, dental assistant, X-Ray and operating room procedure; personnel administration, data processing, equipment operation, stenography, finance, ordnance supply, cooking, and clerical procedures and typing.

AN APPLICANT interested in any of these fields qualifies by taking aptitude tests before enlistment. Some schools also require past high school study in certain subjects such as physics or chemistry.

The successful applicant is enlisted on a date which allows for eight weeks of military orientation at the WAC Center, Fort McClellan, Ala., immediately prior to the start of the specialized course.

THE ARMY technical schools are located in Texas, Maryland, Virginia, Indiana, Georgia and Alabama. With the exception of clerical procedures and typing, all courses are co-educational with male soldiers.

"I recommend early inquiry by interested young women," states Sgt. Elgin Elliott, commander of the U.S. Army Recruiting Station at 1319 1/2 Sartori Ave. "School quotas are nationwide and may be filled quickly."

A WAC applicant must be a high school graduate or pass the State's equivalency test, be between the ages of 18 through 34, single, with no dependents.
